Please: forward this to any friends and colleagues who share your concerns about our economy, about creating a sustainable future, and about keeping our planet a safe and healthy home for all.

Thank You!

We are now two years old as an official 501(c)3 organization, and I've learned something from every one of you in this journey to bring education about climate change and a sustainable future to high school and middle school students in Massachusetts.

Whatever you contributed -- money, encouragement, ideas, information -- and from some (to whom I am especially grateful), all of the above.

As we have so recently learned, it all adds up. And, it is all valued and appreciated.

Our First Newsletter! --- and are we excited. . .

There is a lot to tell you about our successes and growth over the last three years giving high school students and teachers a format to learn about climate change and the major issues and options that we face.

We have stories from students across the state. Videos viewed by thousands, (yes thousands!); the CleanTech Awards: whales and wind turbines, waves and watts; wind and weather. And now, we have formed a partnership with the Newbury Film Series to provide a GreenFilmFest as part of Boston GreenFest 2009.

We plan to send out a monthly newsletter (although earlier) to let you know when new material is available on the web, new ideas or questions are being considered, new programs are announced.

We hope that you will stay with us!

Look for our next newsletter, mid-August:

- An Update on the FilmFest/Boston Green Fest 2009
- Postings of Student Videos -- You be the Judge?

P.S. The GreenFilmFest at Boston GreenFest 2009, August 21-22

We will have two venues at Boston GreenFest. One will be showing (for free) full length films and one will feature shorter local independent films and student submissions, ranging from 30 second public service announcements to a fifteen minute documentary on biodiesel. Many of these student films are from the Imagining Tomorrow program, but also include videos from Codman Academy in Dorchester, YCAN members, and others.

We cannot possibly show all of the wonderful full-length films that have been made in the past few years on climate change and sustainability. But -- we are assembling a bibliography "for future viewing". If you have a favorite commercial or independent film that you would like to see included, please let us know.

Thank you so much!

Mary Essary
